No doubt Spain has been in the news quite a bit during the past few weeks. Sorry to say that the news is still not good. Over 170,000 people have the coronavirus and 17,500 people have died. There are still an average of around 600 people who die each day here. We know that basically things are just as bad in the USA right now.

As of today, we have been confined to our home by law for an entire month. We have two more weeks to go and possibly more depending on whether the numbers go up or down. We are not supposed to leave our home for anything until we have permission from the government. Thankfully we have someone to help us buy our groceries, medicine, etc. We made him a document showing that he works for us and he has been stopped already two times by the police and had to prove where he was going and what he was doing. Only one person at a time can go in a car and only one from a family can go to the grocery store etc.

So needless to say we are not doing much ministry right now. All the churches in all the country are closed until further notice including the catholic churches. Our church is using the social media to transmit our regular services. Many people are watching who don't even come to church. This past Sunday we had viewers from Brazil, USA, and Romania as well as our own people. Our Easter cantata is on hold. We are using our group in WhatsApp to be able to communicate with the church folks. We are thankful none of our members have been infected so far.

The government has forced the hospitals to cancel all doctor appointments that are not urgent. So Carolyn is still waiting for her arm surgery. Lila, that we mentioned last month is still waiting for flights to resume to the USA to donate her kidney to her sister. So we are just trusting the Lord knowing He is in control and feel somehow He can get glory through all that is happening. We are so thankful for His protection over us thus far. Thanks to all who have inquired about our well being. The best tool we have right now is prayer! We are counting on you.
